Once upon a time, there was an ant and a grasshopper. They lived in a grassy meadow. It was the summer time. The ant worked all day long. It carried food. The ant was tired. But, it went far away to find food.

The grasshopper laughed at the ant. “Why can’t you rest? “Why do you work so hard, dear ant? This is summer”, the grasshopper said. “Come, let’s enjoy. Just dance with me”

The ant did not listen to the grasshopper. It ignored the grasshopper. “Don’t waste this chance dear ant”, said the grasshopper. “No, you waste time dear grasshopper! Soon the summer will end”.

The ant was right. Summer vanished. Autumn and winter came next. The days were cold, not hot. Snow began to fall. It was freezing.

The grasshopper could not sing. It was very hungry. But, there was nothing to eat! “Where shall I go now? Who will help me?”

The grasshopper went to the ant. “All day long I worked hard. You wasted your time”, said the ant. “I’m hungry and cold. Give me something to eat.” said the grasshopper. So, the ant gave some food. That day, grasshopper learnt a lesson. It is, “Prepare today for the needs of tomorrow”.
