While walking along the narrow footpath.
Chanced to see,
A vast stretch of paddy plants
Where dew drops had fallen around the field
And golden leaves danced in the breeze
As birds circled to get at the grain,
The sound of the swirling plants filled my heart,
I stood in owe,
Couldn't take my eyes away,
And so I sang this beautiful psalm
As I walked along the path,
But, oh! So suddenly, my joy was lost

Because now I was standing among
A host of men with sickles in their hands
Ready to harvest the ripened golden plants.

15 Read the following passage and answer the questions given below. (10 marks)

The electronic technology has brought about a revolution in children's and teenager's form of entertainment. For example the invention of electronic television games show the use of an extremely complicated electronic circuit. These games produce very attractive pictures and exciting sounds. That is why they attract many teenagers.

Mothers and house wives have also benefited from the electronic revolution. The weight and size of the appliances have been reduced as a result of the micro electronic devices used. Another advantage of these devices is the timing system. It allows the housewives to prepare food, put into oven, and have it cooked at a late time. In this way they can come home from work to a prepared meal. This saves a lot of time and energy for them.

Another example of the effect of the electronic revolution is the computerization of the most offices and companies today. Fast and powerful computers help us to tedious and continuous jobs such as counting data management.

Possibly the greatest change is seen in how the advanced communication system has changed our domestic life and business life. Formerly the telephone wires were connected by hand, but today, the operation is done automatically by an electronic switch.

(1) Write two benefits of the electronic revolution as given in the passage.

(2) (i) Has the development in electronic technology made our lives difficult?

.....

(ii) Do the children and teenagers like electronic television games?
