Objective:- Assess the ability to read, understand and interpret directly and indirectly stated information in a given text

○ Test 15 Technique:- answering questions

Read the following text and answer the questions given below it.

- ① Penguins are one of the world's most interesting birds. They waddle when they walk. They have flippers instead of wings. The bones in a penguin's flippers are heavier and more solid than those in the wings of a flying bird. This helps the penguin 'fly' through the water. The penguin's black back and white front has an important function too—camouflage in the water. Penguins blend in with the sea from above and with the sky from below. This makes it harder for predatory birds, leopard seals, sea lions, orcas and sharks to see them. Many people think all penguins live in the cold and ice of Antarctica. However, only 6 of the 17 species or types of penguins live in Antarctica. The others live in parts of New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and South America and on the Falkland and Galapagos Islands.
- ② Let's talk about the Emperor penguin of Antarctica. The Emperor penguin is the world's largest penguin. Its oily outer feathers help keep it dry. Its dense inner down feathers and thick fat layer help keep it warm. Emperor penguins also often huddle in groups to conserve heat. A mother Emperor penguin lays only one egg at a time. After the mother Emperor penguin lays the egg, she travels to open sea to feed on fish, squid and krill (shrimp-like ocean crustaceans). The father stays behind with the egg. He keeps it warm and protected by balancing it on his feet and covering it with feathered skin called a brood pouch. The mother returns two months later, to feed the newly hatched chick, then stays with it while the father goes out to sea to feed.
- ③ The loss of sea ice harms Emperor penguin chicks and adults. Emperor penguins rear their chicks on land-locked sea ice. When sea ice breaks up before their chicks have matured and grown their waterproof feathers, chicks that are swept into the ocean are likely to die. For adults, the loss of sea ice can lead to lower food availability, which can result in increased mortality.

(b) Sports as an important part of a student's life.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy", is an old proverb which highlights the importance of doing sports. Sports is a great asset to a student's life.

There is an important place for sports in the school calendar. Almost all the schools organize sportsmeets, matches, tournaments etc. throughout the year to ensure the physical development of the students. They have provided facilities such as playgrounds, courts for netball, basketball etc. Sports helps the students to maintain good health.

Among many other things, sports has some additional benefits as students play in groups and in healthy competitive spirit. It helps to promote good health, quality of leadership and team spirit.

Sports makes students adventurous, social, disciplined and more conscious of their responsibilities.

Unlike the students who do not engage in any kind of sport, those who do, learn how to accept victory and defeat with grace. It is very important to deal with victory and defeat equally as some unpleasant situations in a field may create bad impressions among the spectators.

Sports is a great way of building up one's personality. It is an essential source of encouragement to all students for the betterment of their future.
