By the time we got to the bridge it was very nearly dark. We could just see that the water was over the middle of it. But as that happened sometimes when the floods were out, master did not stop. We were going along at a good pace, but the moment my feet touched the first part of the bridge, I felt sure there was something wrong. I dared not to go forward, and I made a dead stop. "Go on Beauty," said my master, and he gave me a touch with the whip, but I dared not stir. He gave me a sharp cut: I jumped but I dared not to go forward. "There's something wrong, sir" said John, and he sprang out of the dog cart and came to my head and looked all about. He tried to lead me forward. "Come on Beauty, what's the matter?" Of course I couldn't tell him, but I knew very well the bridge was not safe. Just then the man at the toll-gate on the other side ran out of the house tossing a torch about like one mad.

"Hoy, hoy, hoy, hallo, stop!" he cried.
"What's the matter?" shouted my master.

"The bridge is broken in the middle, and part of it carried away. If you come on you'll be into the river".

Black Beauty, by Anne Sewell.

(I)

It is the afternoon, and the sun is out. The two children go down to the sands with their new kite. They keep away from the other boys and girls and from the donkeys, so that they can run along the sands.

~~"We must not get in the way of the donkeys," says Jane.~~

Peter says that Jane can have the kite first. "You can pull it first," he says.

(ii)

Uncle says, "You put Punch and Judy on your hands, like this. Then you make them talk."

"I see," says Peter. "I know the right way to do it now. Let me have Punch, I like him very much."

Peter puts Punch on one of his hands.

Then Jane says, "I'll have Judy. I know the right way now." She puts Judy on her hand. "I like Judy," she says.

Peter makes Punch say, "I'm Punch. I would like to live here with Peter."

Jane makes Judy say, "I'm Judy. I like Jane. I like this house."

Then Punch and Judy talk to one another. The two children have fun.

"I would like to take them to school to let the other children and our teacher see them," says Peter.

"Yes," says Jane, "let's take Punch and Judy to school when we go back."

They thank Uncle for his present.
